

A close-up photograph of a verges. The foreground is dominated by a cluster of purple flowers, likely Stachys palustris, with green, serrated leaves. In the background, there are dense patches of yellow wildflowers, possibly Ranunculus acris, and other green vegetation. The scene is brightly lit, suggesting a sunny day.

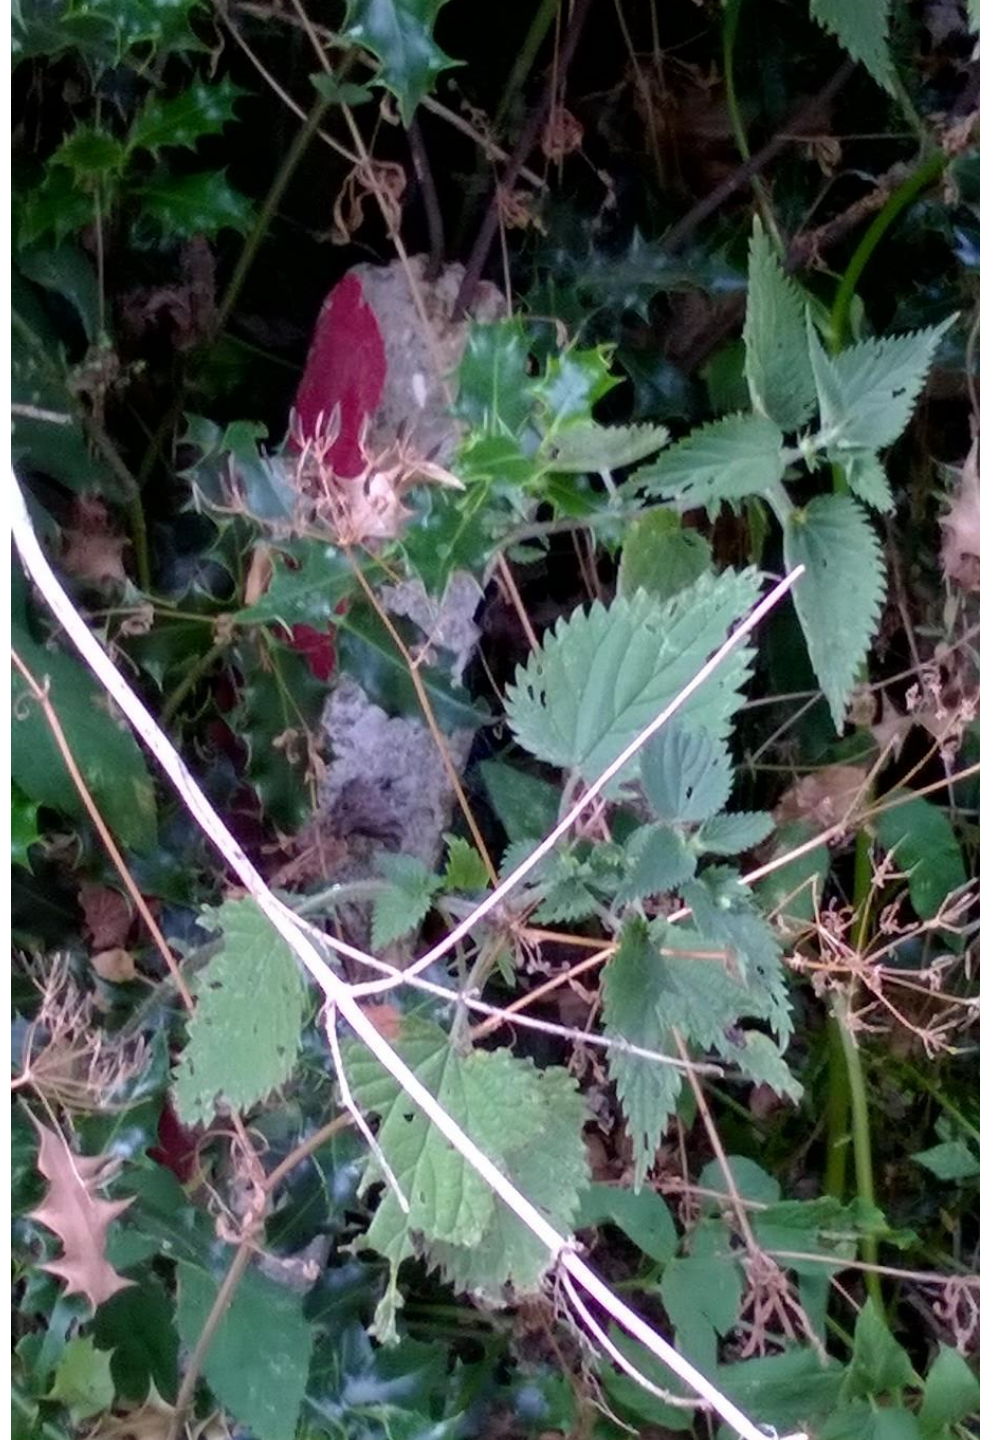

Verging on Wild

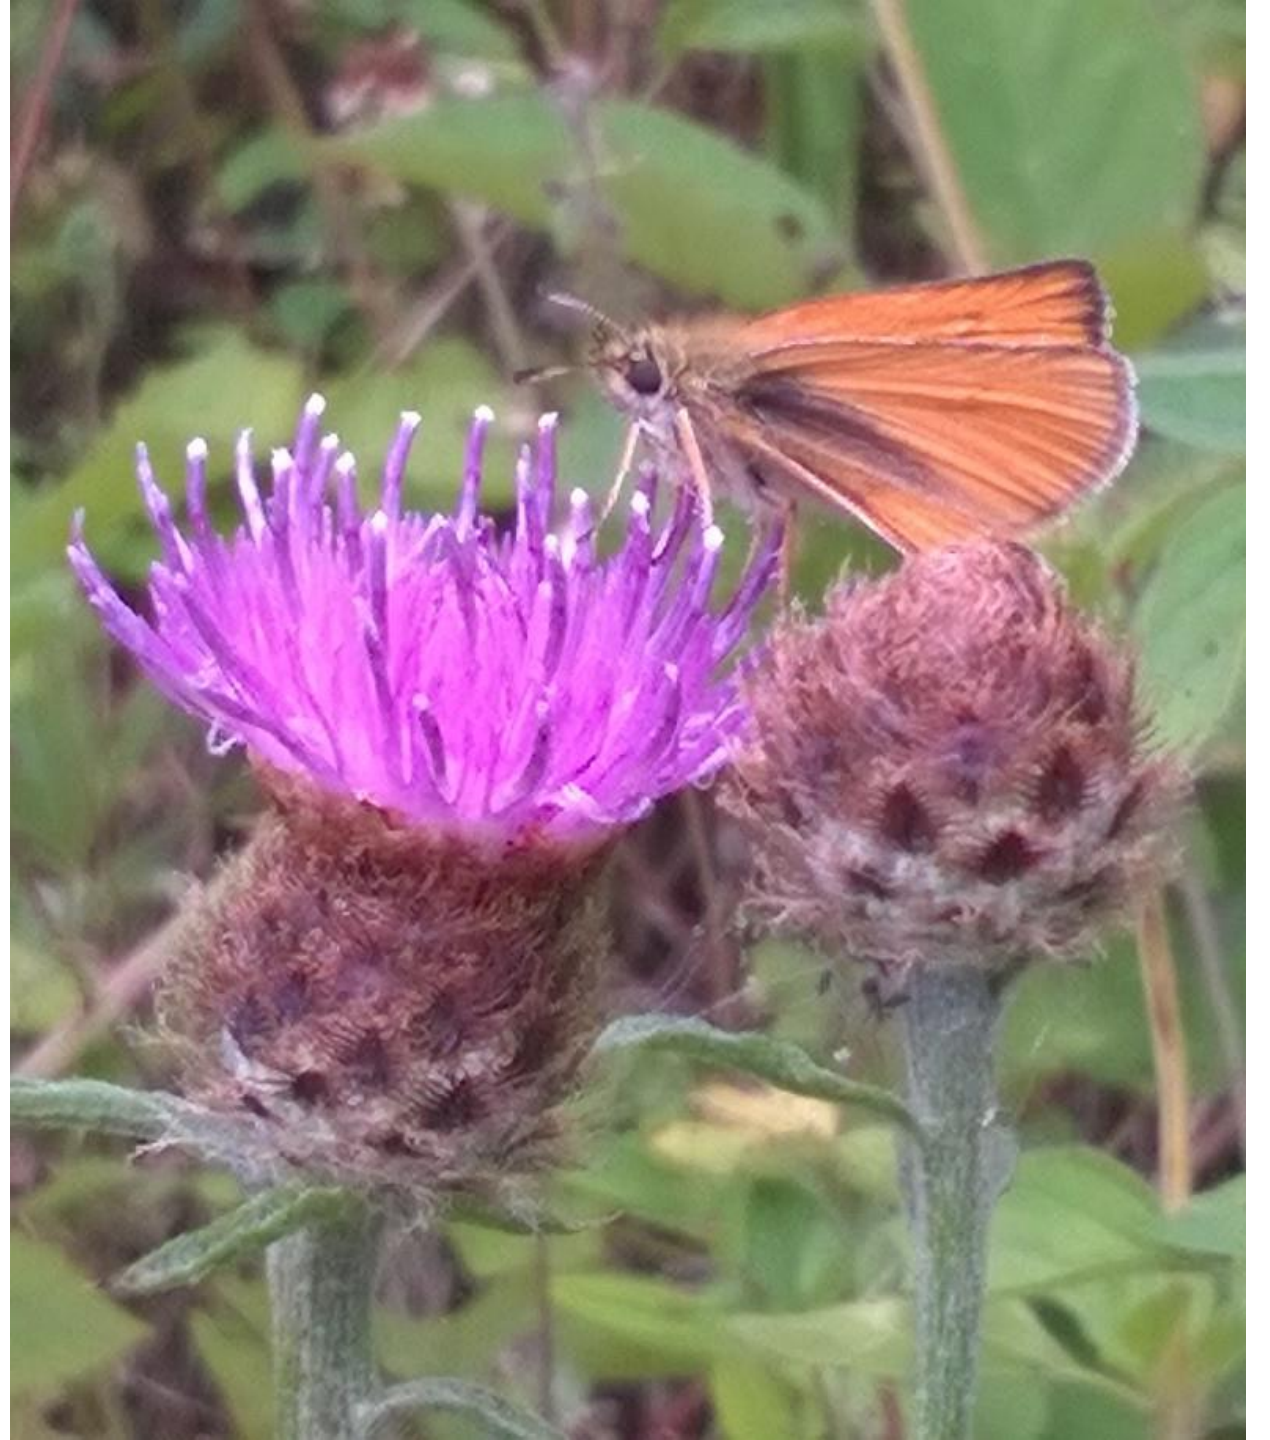

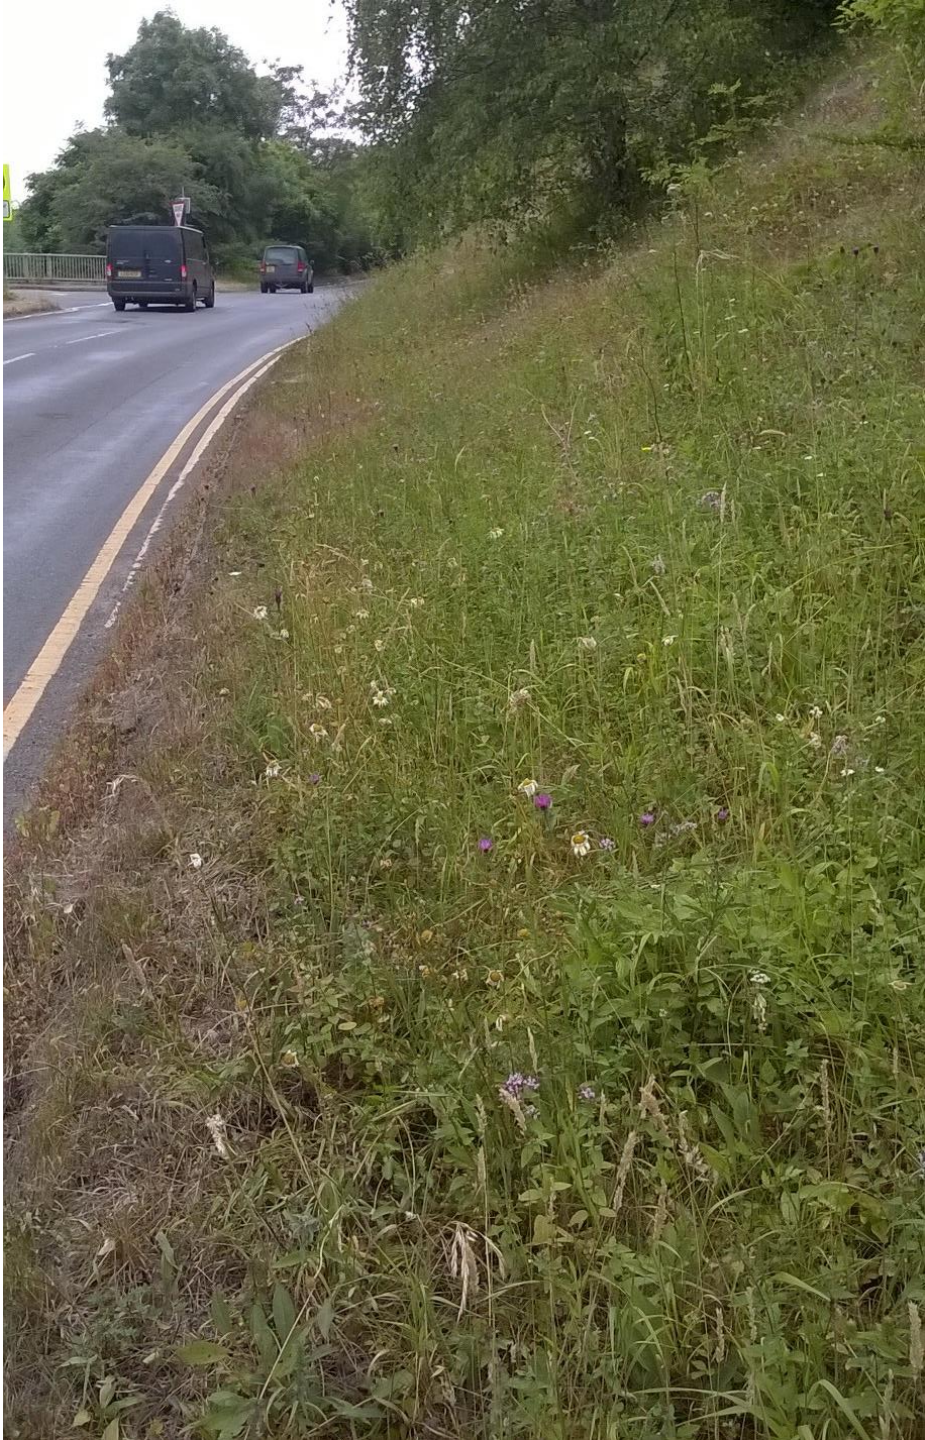

Saving the biodiversity of Herefordshire's verges

Herefordshire Wildlife Trust

<http://plantlife.love-wildflowers.org.uk/roadvergecampaign>